What is Maca?

Maca is an exceptionally hardy root plant native to the Andean mountain plateaus of Peru. Maca grows where no other crops can survive, at altitudes of 14,000 feet in an extreme climate of freezing cold, fierce winds and intense sunlight. Herbalists believe that resilient plants are especially valuable from a medicinal perspective and in this category, maca knows no equal.

In spite of the poor volcanic soil and harsh environmental conditions, maca is amazingly rich in amino acids, phytonutrients, fatty acids, vitamins and minerals. Native Peruvians have used maca for thousands of years as food and medicine to increase energy and stamina, deal with stress, improve fertility and enhance libido.

MacaSure™ is a premium brand of gelatinized maca.

Farming high in the Peruvian Andes.

Harvested maca root.

How does Maca work?

Maca is an adaptogen, which by definition is a non-toxic substance that raises your body's state of resistance to disease by allowing you to adapt to a variety of stressors to foster physiological and emotional health.

Maca demonstrates a unique ability to support and rejuvenate tired and overwhelmed adrenal glands, promoting balanced, normalized function naturally throughout your body's hormonal systems.

What are experts saying?

"Once a well kept Peruvian secret, maca has emerged from the ancient and colorful history of South America to arouse the interests and desires of aging baby boomers and scientists alike. Used for centuries by native men and women to increase energy, enhance sexual function and improve hormonal function, I have used maca successfully in my practice for over a decade."

Carmen Mattes – Master Herbalist and author of "The Wonders of Maca"

"My first patient to take the maca capsules was experiencing hot flashes and other menopausal symptoms. She started feeling much better after using this herb for only four days. I'm also employing it with other patients who have low adrenal function."

Dr. Henry Campanile, MD, St. Petersburg, FL

"Maca regulates the organs of internal secretion, such as the pituitary, the adrenal glands and the pancreas. I have had perhaps 200 female patients whose menopausal symptoms are alleviated by taking maca."
